

Breach in Ranks Of G.O.P. Widened Over Agriculture

Senator Capper Renews Insurgency by Protest- ing Eastern-Made Tariff Measures.

WHITE HOUSE RAPS CUT IN TARIFF

Coolidge in Message to Iowa Meet Takes Firm Stand Against Price-Fixing.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, December 29.—(AP)—Cleave- age between the eastern and western groups in the republican party is be- coming more pronounced, due to the revival of the farm relief issue. This schism has been hidden under the great personal prestige of President Coolidge during the last two years but it is rapidly reappearing.

One evidence of that developed here Tuesday when Senator Capper, Kan- sas, republican, and leader of the senate farm group, protested against eastern-made tariffs and predicted that unless the Fordney-McCumber act is modified, an economic upheaval will take place.

Capper has kept rather close to the administration of late, but as the agricultural situation has become an acute issue again he is resuming his insurgency, as are Senator Cummins and other former "farm" progressives.

This struggle between the west and the east wrecked the party once and always has been a source of more or less trouble. The tariff has been the usual vehicle because it is there that the mighty power of the east has been written into the law to its great fi- nancial profit while the western farm- ers, whittling at their mortgages, have been able to do little except get fight- ing mad about it.

"The farmer has always suffered from tariff legislation," Senator Cap- per said to delegates at the tariff con- ference of the People's Reconstruction league here, "because the laws were made in the east. All in all, the farmer has had the short end of the tariff. New Englanders, in my opin- ion, have had too large a part in shap- ing our tariff policy."

Capper also favors something like the McNary-Haugen farm bill for con- trolling crop prices through a govern- ment export corporation against what President Coolidge is firmly set.

The white house made it plain again Tuesday, in a telegram to the Iowa corn conference and at the white house press conference, reiterating that he opposes government price-fixing, di- rect or indirect. It has not even been admitted that President Coolidge ac- cepts Secretary of Agriculture Jar- vis's compromise plan for a surplus commission, though when this was first proposed it was intimated that it had white house support.

Suggestions that the tariff be mod- ified are received unfavorably at the white house. Some months ago New England textile manufacturers start- ed agitation to revise the tariff up- ward. President Coolidge objected to this fearing it would encourage just what is now taking place—a demand for reduction from the farmers.

For the first time since he became president, Coolidge is hearing criticism from an important element of his own party which hitherto has been unable to find sufficiently glow- ing adjectives to express its admira- tion of the executive.

RUMORS OF POWER MERGER CURRENT

Georgia Railway and Power Company Heads Deny Reports That Merger Is in Making.

New York, December 29.—(AP)—Re- ports of the acquisition of the properties of the Georgia Railway and Power com- pany by the Southeastern Power and Light company were current in finan- cial circles Tuesday.

It was reported that the merger was accomplished on a share for share basis, but official confirmation was lacking.

It was indicated by an officer of the Southeastern Power and Light company that an announcement might be made Wednesday.

One sign that points to a possible consolidation is the fact that the Southeastern stock advanced to new high ground Tuesday while other util- ity stocks were flat.

Ice Skating Ushered in as Lakes in City Freeze Over Attracting Throngs of Lovers of the Chilly Pastime

One of those rare occasions when it is safe to venture on frozen ponds in Atlanta occurred Tuesday when Piedmont and Grant parks were patronized by the limited few who can use ice skates. These photographs were made at Piedmont park. The graceful skater is Donald Keller, of 242 Juniper street. The others are interested spectators and daredevil boys who at- tempted to ride bicycles on the ice.

Subfreezing Temperature Expected Early Today, Followed by Gradual Rise in Mercury.

Lakes in Piedmont and Grant parks took on the appearance of the arctic regions for a brief period Tuesday, and the unusual sport of ice skating was enjoyed by many people when the water froze to a depth of several inches.

The two lakes froze over almost solidly for the first time in two years. The only places where they were not frozen were at their outlets, where flowing water prevented freezing.

Boys and girls and a few adults dug up real ice skates brought here from northern homes, while others simply "skated" along on good old shoe leather.

Slides were prepared by several boys, running from the banks at Piedmont park down to the frozen water, and a big crowd enjoyed the sliding.

It also was reported that the large lake at Brookhaven and East Lake Country clubs were frozen thick enough to support people, but no skating was attempted at either club.

In many parts of Atlanta small pools of water were frozen and children enjoyed sliding across the ice.

Other popular sports brought by the freeze were thawing out radiators and calling for first aid from plumbers for frozen pipes.

COLD WAVE GRIP IN SOUTH BROKEN.

The grip of the cold wave which brought to the south its coldest De- cember in many years was broken in Atlanta Tuesday afternoon when the mercury climbed to 42 degrees, and normal temperatures with clear skies are predicted today by A. H. Scott, assistant Atlanta meteorologist.

Although the extreme cold weather with near zero temperatures is over, the entire state will have freezing temperatures today, Mr. Scott said. He expects the thermometer will go to about 25 degrees early this morn- ing, and will rise to 40 or above, he continued.

The lowest temperature recorded in Atlanta Tuesday was 14 degrees, while mercury readings below freez- ing were registered over the entire state and into Florida. Savannah reported 24 degrees for the minimum; Macon reported 18 degrees; Thomas- ville 22 degrees, and Jacksonville, Fla., 26 degrees.

The Washington bureau forecast for the state at large was for cloudy weather today, with rains probable in the south and west portions Thurs- day.

WEEVIL HARD HIT BY EXTREME COLD.

Sparta, Ga., December 29.—(Spe- cial)—This immediate section of the state is passing through one of the coldest winters for many years, ac- cording to S. D. Truitt, county agent, and cotton-producing farmers of Han- cock county are much encouraged over predicted reduced activity on the part of the boll weevils during the coming year.

Observant farmers joint out that comparatively little damage was sus- tained in this county on account of weevil infestation during the present crop year, and still less annoyance should come from that source during 1926. The winter is said to be al- ready severe enough to practically de- stroy all hibernating weevils.

1,000 REPORTED KILLED IN FLOOD IN TRANSYLVANIA

Vienna, December 29.—(AP)—Terror- stricken, panicky thousands are rush- ing out of the Transylvania flood dis- trict where great loss of life is re- ported, according to dispatches from Budapest. Some un- confirmed reports estimate the number drowned as high as 500 to 1,000. An area of approximately 200,000 acres is said to have been deluged by the icy snow water from the mountains.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Klausenburg, a city of 60,000 in- habitants, from which the people are flee- ing, in many cases leaving their pos- sessions, abandoned and scattered along the road.

GALE SWEEPS GREAT BRITAIN.

London, December 29.—(AP)—A 60- mile scale swept Britain Tuesday and simultaneously there was a sudden thaw of flood proportions. Portions of the Thames valley are under water and similar overflows are reported from Wales.

Domestic and cross-channel aerial service was suspended. The high winds extended over the channel.

GERMAN CITIES ALSO FLOODED.

Berlin, December 29.—(AP)—The Rhine and its tributaries are rising swiftly, endangering the lowlands, ac- cording to a dispatch from Cologne.

Mannheim and its suburbs are flooded; the inhabitants besieged the schools for shelter. At Duisburg the water is rising at the rate of 3.4 inches an hour. At Cologne the rate is 2.35 inches. Riverside houses at Cologne have been evacuated and railway traffic has been suspended.

Success Is Temporary.

"The spirit of Locarno has been in- troduced into the cabinet," was the way M. Briand described his victory over the recalcitrant ministers after the meeting. There was disposition in political circles, however, to re- gard the premier's success as tem- porary. The radical ministers, it was argued in the lobbies of the cham- ber, had been outgunned, but not subdued. They preferred to remain in the cabinet rather than furnish a chance by putting representatives of other groups in their places.

The fight will begin again when the chamber meets after the holidays, and will continue even if it is neces- sary to form new groupings of the parties. Briand will give the cabinet a stable majority, bent on solving the

Aged French "Tiger" Finds Happiness in Former Loves

Paris, December 29.—(AP)—Georges Clemenceau, 84-year-old politician and the wartime "Tiger" of France, finds his greatest happiness in the evening of life in living over the love affairs of his youth. The bristling old man who jailed his enemies and carried France to victory when he was first premier is sentimental after all.

"I have had the most beautiful love affairs I ever befell any man to ex- perience," Clemenceau recently con- fided to Mlle. Cecile Sorel in explain- ing why he now withdraws from the world. "That is why, when I retire to my country place at Vendee, I leave instructions at my Paris home that no letters, no deputies and no flowers are to be forwarded to me. I want to live over again my happy youth."

Mlle. Sorel is an ardent admirer of the old "Tiger" and, although he seldom leaves his Paris home in the Rue Franklin, Clemenceau manages to pay his courtesy calls upon Mlle.

WILBANKS TO FACE GRAND JURY PROBE IN WIFE SHOOTING

Veteran Policeman Ordered Held, Following Coroner's Inquest, Main- tains Mate Shot Self.

DOCTOR ADMITS SUICIDE POSSIBLE

Testimony Regarding Vic- tim's Habits Shows Her To Have Indulged in Liquor.

W. C. Wilbanks, veteran member of the Atlanta police department, will be held without bail until the Fulton county grand jury investigates charges made Tuesday by a coroner's jury that he shot and killed his 30-year-old wife last Saturday morning in the home, 171-A Capitol avenue.

The verdict accusing Officer Wilbanks as his wife's slayer was re- turned by the jury Tuesday afternoon. The inquest began at 10 o'clock in the morning at the chapel of Harry G. Poole, with Coroner Paul Donehue presiding.

Officer Wilbanks, who claimed his wife shot herself after shooting at him three times, received the verdict with- out emotion or comment. He stands by the story he told those who first entered his apartment after Mrs. Wilbanks was shot, and which he has told repeatedly.

The verdict followed testimony from police officers and others who entered the Wilbanks apartment when the ac- cused officer raised an alarm. The first one in the room was Patrolman J. H. Bradberry, who, with his wife, occupies an apartment on the same floor.

Bradberry testified he was awak- ened by knocks on his door and he found Officer Wilbanks in the hall. He said Wilbanks summoned him to the Wilbanks apartment. When he and Wilbanks entered, he testified, Wilbanks told him his wife had shot twice at him and he fell to the floor, and that she then turned the weapon on herself, shooting three times.

"I couldn't tell anything about Mrs. Wilbanks' wounds, and ran to my apartment and got my wife, who pulled the bed clothing back and discov- ered the blood," Bradberry said. "The ambulance was immediately sum- moned."

"Mrs. Wilbanks denied she had shot at her husband and then shot herself, accusing him of shooting her. Wilbanks denied this accusation and ad- ded 'Honey, you know I wouldn't harm a hair on your head,'" Bradberry added.

Police Sergeant C. F. Allen, who, with Captain Grover C. Fain, of the morning detail, visited the Wilbanks apartment, testified Wilbanks did not appear altogether normal, but that he answered to the name of W. C. Wilbanks on the officer's breath. Six quarts of "home brew" were found in the Wilbanks apartment, Sergeant Allen testified.

Dr. W. E. Gottreu, nerve special- ist, testified that he was awakened by the telephone ringing, and when he answered it, he was requested by Of- ficer Wilbanks to come up to his apart- ment at once; that his wife had shot herself. "I could hear the screams of a woman through the phone," the doc- tor testified. When he entered the apartment of the Wilbanks, the offi- cer told him the same story that he

Miners at Once Announce Unalterable Objection to Feature of Markle's Proposal.

PLAN OF PINCHOT URGED BY WORKERS

Proposition Proves Un- acceptable to Operators. Conference Meets Again Today.

New York, December 29.—(AP)—The joint conference of miners and opera- tors adjourned at midnight without agreeing on a plan of settlement of the anthracite strike.

Adjournment was taken until 1 o'clock tomorrow when discussions will be resumed on various settle- ment proposals to the conference.

A new peace plan was presented to the miners and operators today and, like all the others, it proved unsatis- factory to one side.

The latest proposition came from Alvin Markle, of Hazleton, Pa., chair- man of the joint wage conference of operators and miners. Mr. Markle is a minority stockholder in the Jeddo Highland Coal company.

Whether his plan was acceptable to the operators was not made known but the miners promptly voiced their opposition because it contained what they termed an arbitration feature.

In an agreed statement issued by the workers "we are much opposed to ar- bitration today as they were four months ago and will continue in their opposition."

The proposal made by Governor Pinchot at Harrisburg a month ago and rejected by the operators, was urged by the miners as "a construc- tive plan for settlement." The op- erators, however, would not listen to its adoption, arguing that it was "de- structive and unworkable."

Statement by Conference.

The following agreed statement was issued by the joint conference tonight: "The various plans heretofore sub- mitted were made part of the record. It was agreed that all plans could be brought before the conference. Among the plans also were entered the fol- lowing: "Plan of Governor Pinchot; the legislators' plan; the engineers' plan and the answer of the miners' thereto. The joint wage conference of op- erators and miners, and the Pinchot plan, were made part of the record. Letters from the Panther Creek Business Men's association, and Scranton min- isters also were entered in the record. "Chairman Alvin Markle submitted a plan for the settlement of the strike. The plan was discussed at length. The miners plan did not amount to ar- bitration. The operators plan did not amount to arbitration. The Pinchot plan was destructive and unworkable. "The miners stated that they were as much opposed to arbitration today as they were four months ago and will continue in their opposition. "The attitude of the operators was that an acceptable plan should provide for a long term agreement, provision for wage increases if economic con- ditions require and some means of avoiding deadlocks in case of disagree- ments. "The conference, six on each side, went into session behind closed doors at the Union League club late today. Shortly afterward word came from the operators' room that Mr. Markle had presented a peace plan and that the two sides had gone into separate conference to consider it. "Hope was expressed by observers

FATE OF SHEFFEY IN JURY'S HANDS

Maryville, Tenn., December 29.—(AP)—Arguments were completed late today and the case of the state of Tennessee versus William D. Sheffey, accused of the murder of Luther Walls, was given to a Blount county criminal court grand jury at nightfall.

The charge to the jury followed the usual hour for daily recess, Judge John J. Blair, hearing the jury that in its deliberation of the evidence it could find a verdict of murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree or if the preponderance of evidence was not deemed to be against the defendant its duty would be to acquit him.

Sessions of the court today were consumed in final arguments by counsel for state and defense. A. N.

Brown and Sam Johnson opening for the state, followed by T. C. Drimmer for the defense. Attorney General T. W. Peace for the state, R. R. Kramer and M. H. Gamble for the defense, with General Peace terminating the argument.

Immediately after the charge was given the jury was retired for supper and no report is expected before tomorrow morning.

difficulties of the hour without regard to party interests. There are still many party leaders who consider that this can be accomplished only after dissolution of the chamber and new elections.

The groups of the left seem to have had new elections in view in the moves they made the past week and the measures they are prepared to present in opposition to the government's financial bills are so framed as to furnish campaign material.

Domer's Plans.

M. Doumer has met them in a way, for the principal source of revenue under his bills will be indirect, through a special stamp tax on commercial transactions. The bills approved by the cabinet will raise, it is estimated, 8,500,000,000 francs new revenue annually. Of this 2,500,000,000 francs will go to the sinking fund to extinguish the short term debt, and 2,000,000,000 to reimburse advances from the Bank of France. The remainder will be devoted to balancing the budget and furnishing such surplus as would be calculated to avoid the danger of a recurring deficit through post depreciation of the franc.

Domer, however, figures that if the bills are passed as drawn up, the franc will be steadied, so that the danger of further depreciation will be eliminated.

WHEELER CLEARED OF PLOT CHARGE

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, December 29.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, has been exonerated finally of charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, and one of the most dramatic episodes before the federal grand jury, revolving about the fiery young senator and a hardened politician and cabinet officer, former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, apparently has come to an end.

The department of justice has not decided whether it will appeal the dismissal of the indictment here Tuesday night against the democratic senator and two others, Attorney General Sargent said, but added that similar cases lost in the lower courts before, had been appealed.

Sustains Demerit.

Justice Bailey, of the District of Columbia supreme court, sustained a demerit challenge the indictment here by Wheeler's attorneys, Senator Walsh of Montana, and Charles A. Douglas.

Wheeler was acquitted some months ago at Great Falls, Montana, of charges of misuse of his office to secure oil and gas permits for clients from the interior department. Subsequently, he was indicted here on a broadened charge alleging conspiracy to defraud the government, but based on no evidence.

The case was thrown out of court Tuesday. The two others indicted with Wheeler, who also were exonerated, were Attorney General Edwin S. Booth, and Gordon Campbell, a Montana oil operator.

Senators Borah, Idaho republican, and Swanson, Virginia democrat, who sat on the special committee which investigated the charges against Wheeler, said the committee had exonerated him, expressed gratification Tuesday that the indictment here had been voided.

As chairman of the committee which investigated charges against Senator Wheeler, Borah said, "I came to the conclusion that there was no evidence to sustain the law and no evidence that he intended to. The exoneration at the hands of the court since that time has simply confirmed my opinion and therefore neither the decision of Montana nor the verdict of the court here has surprised me."

Wheeler, himself, was highly elated over the decision. In characteristic fashion he dismissed his office staff for the day, in celebration of the event.

"I am delighted with the decision of the court," he said. "It means I am thoroughly vindicated. Having stonored my integrity in the senate, the Montana courts, and the supreme court here, I hope my enemies will have had enough and will leave me alone."

Justice Bailey held that the indictment was faulty from the outset in that the charges it set forth did not constitute a violation of the law. At one point, he said, was enough to kill the indictment.

WILKINS CASE TO GRAND JURY

had told Bradberry and his wife about Mrs. Wilkins shooting twice at him and then shooting herself.

"Mrs. Wilkins was fully dressed and it was necessary for me to tear her clothing. I then found two bullet wounds in her right abdomen. Mrs. Wilkins denied her husband's statement that she had shot at him twice and then shot herself, accusing him of having shot her," Dr. Gottreau swore.

Used Liquor.

Mrs. M. F. Crawley, who lives at the house where the Wilkins live, testified that Mrs. Wilkins drank quite frequently, and kept liquor in her apartment. She related an incident some time ago when she was summoned to the Wilkins apartment by Mr. Wilkins, and found Mrs. Wilkins crying. When she asked what was the trouble with Mrs. Wilkins, her husband replied that she was simply drunk, she said.

Dr. H. Reed, coroner's physician, testified as to the location of the wounds he found. "There were three wounds—one in the left breast, below the armpit, and one in the right side of the abdomen and another emerging from the left lung, and another entered her right inner thigh and emerged over the right hip," he testified.

In reply to a question from Attorney William F. Buchanan, who has been here today, Dr. Reed testified that he admitted that it was possible for the woman to have shot herself three times, but said he didn't recall such a case.

Mrs. Bradberry said a man went to the Wilkins apartment about 8 o'clock Saturday night and that he had some difficulty in getting any one to the door. "Mrs. Wilkins was the first to the door and then her husband. After a few whispered words, the man was admitted to the apartment," she said. She related an incident that Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins left the apartment Saturday night and returned some time between 9:30 o'clock and midnight.

Mrs. Bradberry also said that Mrs. Wilkins frequently told her that Wilkins' relatives had "conjured" sores on her legs. "Mrs. Wilkins told me she believed it had been conjured by a Hindu," Mrs. Bradberry said. "She seemed unable to concentrate and sometimes told me the same thing several times in succession."

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Wilkins had not been completed late Tuesday, being held up until her son and daughter, who were in Cincinnati, Ohio, her son is H. P. Kimball and her daughter is Mrs. Dora Van Frank.

The Markle Plan.

The principal points in the Markle plan were:

The contract and working conditions which were operative up to the time of calling the strike shall be continued for one year.

Creation of a fact-finding commission.

It also is reported that two of Philadelphia's largest utility firms, E. W. Clark and company and Elkins Morris and company are interested financially in the merger.

If the merger is consummated the consolidated organization will be one of the largest utility companies in the southeast.

New Evolution Principles Are Outlined by Scientist

NEW HAVEN, CONN., December 29.—(AP)—Asserting that traditional biology and modern science are irreconcilable and that "evolution has taken its place beside the law of gravitation of Newton," Henry Fairfield Osborn, research professor of zoology at Columbia university and president of the board of trustees of the American Museum of Natural History, today announced two new principles in evolution. These, he said, have been developed through the science of paleontology, which deals with an interpretation of the fossil remains of life, in which science, he claimed, America leads all other nations.

Paleontology, he said, proves that evolution works through an unbroken rise in new and useful characteristics in animals and plants from generation to generation, not as Darwin thought, by chance variations. The second new principle paleontology has developed, he asserted, was that the species, from the beginning, take the line directed to their future fitness, and not as De Vries thought, by sudden changes in structure.

Osborn's address was made at the dedication of Yale's new Peabody museum of natural history.

Two Broad Solutions.

"From the dawn of human ambition to observe and interpret nature," he said, "there have been only two broad philosophical solutions to the problem of adaptation and the origin of species—the supernatural and the natural." The supernatural, he asserted, must give way to the natural.

Professor Osborn, also for the first time formulated into what he termed evolution, consisting of three operators, three principles, which in natural history, he said, are the basis of the selection to be selected by the president of the United States.

Adoption of the principle of collective bargaining, "resting upon reason and not endurance."

Provision that the award of the anthracite coal strike commission and subsequent agreements be ratified and continued until September, 1935, subject to renewal every 10 years thereafter.

Selection of a firm of reputable certified public accountants with authority to investigate and report promptly on every phase of the industry.

Will Discuss Wages.

The committee of three shall meet as a whole to reach an agreement as to wages and possible changes in the contract. The public representatives shall not be entitled to vote, unless the operators and miners fail to agree. Then a majority vote will rule.

Should the committee be delayed in fixing rates through unforeseen circumstances, the rates shall be set in any year there shall be no lockout or strike. Any decision rendered afterwards shall be retroactive as of September 1.

In a preamble to his proposal Mr. Markle said that his plan was "based upon years of experience and an intimate knowledge of the conditions involved as well as recognition of the fact that the public interest transcends the interest of either the miners or the operators."

He also stated:

"The immediate resumption of the production of coal is vitally necessary and to accomplish this end both sides in the present controversy must make concessions."

Pinchot's Plan.

Governor Pinchot's plan, strongly opposed by the operators, provided for a five-year agreement and a board of investigation and award to be made up of operators and miners and a number of public representatives to be picked by the two sides. This board would ascertain whether the miners' wages could be increased without advancing the price of coal. In the event this could not be accomplished, the miners were to return to work at the old wage scale.

The two plans favored by the operators, one presented by the mine owners themselves and the other by the Luzerne county delegation of the Pennsylvania house of representatives, provide for boards of settlement.

The operators' plan suggests that the chief justice of the United States, the chief justice of the Pennsylvania supreme court and the presiding judge of the United States circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia pick the representatives of the public to settle disputed points, while the Luzerne county plan named first the president of the United States to make the selection, and as an alternative the three judges named in the operators' proposition.

Both the federal government and the state of Pennsylvania had observed here today keeping in touch with the situation. Representatives of the operators other than the negotiating committee were in New York to be ready for consultation if necessary.

ANTHRACITE SUPPLY
WILL LAST 27 DAYS.

Washington, December 29.—(AP)—A twenty-seven-day supply of anthracite was on hand in retail stocks November 1, the Bureau of Mines of the Commerce Department announced today, adding that, while bituminous coal was being used instead of anthracite to some extent, the exact effect of this substitution was not known.

Since November 1, the bureau said, production of anthracite has practically ceased. Production of bituminous coal, however, averaged around 12,400,000 tons a week.

The stocks of bituminous coal in the hands of consumers on November 1 were approximately 48,000,000 net tons, which was slightly larger than the corresponding period of 1924.

1 KILLED, 2 HURT
IN TWO CRASHES

Swainsboro, Ga., December 29.—(AP)—S. H. Finley was killed instantly this afternoon when a Georgia and Florida railroad passenger train crashed into a touring car at Leeman, 13 miles from here. U. S. F. Finley, his son, and B. Bowright, son-in-law, in the car with Finley, were seriously injured.

S. H. Finley was driving at the time of the accident. Although there was nothing to obstruct the view, he failed to see the approaching train, it was said.

The dead man is one of the most prominent farmers of Emanuel county. The injured men were carried to a hospital in Augusta.

E. R. KNOX IS HURT
IN CROSSING CRASH.

Americus, Ga., December 29.—(AP)—E. R. Knox, of Albany, was injured seriously late this afternoon when an automobile which he was driving was struck by a Seaboard Air Line freight train two miles west of here.

Knox was taken to the city hospital and physicians state his recovery is doubtful. He has several broken bones and is suffering from internal injuries.

Gray, Ga., December 29.—(AP)—A coroner's jury late today exonerated C. L. Callahan, saw mill operator, of all blame in connection with the fatal shooting of J. L. Gordon, 50, farmer, last night at Pope's ferry, near here. The jury considered the act justifiable, it was announced.

According to evidence brought out at the inquest Gordon and his wife had gone to visit the Callahan home. At supper Callahan and Gordon engaged in an argument, in which Gordon tried to strike Callahan with a chair, the latter knocking Gordon down.

Gordon and his wife then left for the home where Gordon owned a shotgun and shells and returned to the Callahan home.

Witnesses said that Mrs. Callahan struggled with Gordon in the yard for possession of the shotgun. But Gordon rushed on to the rear door of the Callahan home, where the fatal shot was fired.

Mrs. Gordon testified that she tried to keep her husband at home.

The shooting began when the bandit entered Manchester's store and commanded him and his wife to hold up their hands.

Kansas City, December 29.—(AP)—Tudous observation extending over five years at the Mount Wilson Observatory in California, have led to conclusions that may modify the Einstein theory of relativity.

Dr. Dayton C. Miller, professor of physics at the Case School of Applied Science and president of the American Physical society, described the experiments before a general session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science annual convention here today. They indicate, he said, that the ether drift with the earth at the observatory at the rate of approximately 10 kilometers per second.

To account for his observations Dr. Miller declared it was necessary to make two assumptions; first, that there is a constant motion of the solar system with a velocity of 200 kilometers per second or more toward the middle of the constellation of the Dragon; second, that in effect the ether drags the ether.

Assuming, Dr. Miller said, based some elements of his theory on ether-drift experiments conducted in 1887 at the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland by Professor Michelson and the late Professor Edward W. Morley, of Western Reserve university, which produced a negative result. The experiments, which sought to reveal whether the motion of the earth through space affected the velocity of light, were renewed by Dr. Miller at the Mount Wilson observatory.

Applications Pouring in for Entrance on January 4th and 11th.

As the winter term of the Southern Shorthand & Business University approaches, applications for entrance are coming in from all parts of the country. The first enrollment week, beginning Monday, January 4, promises to be a very busy one with the registrars.

Those expecting to begin business courses in January, and who have not already sent in their applications, are urged to do so right away.

The Employment Department of the Southern has been active right up to the Christmas holidays, having placed quite a number of pupils in splendid positions during December.

Monday, the 28th, three big firms applied for stenographers, and the Employment Department filled two of the places by phoning to the homes of some of the pupils, the school having closed for the Christmas holidays.

In addition to those who have just gone to work, several of the pupils will accept important positions on the fourth of January, when the new business year begins. One young lady pupil will go with a leading insurance company, and will receive $95 per month as an initial salary.

The managers of the Southern are continually receiving letters from former students who have entered the business world and are making good.

J. W. Griggers, who took the Commercial and Business Efficiency courses at the Southern, writes that he is with a large clothing concern which has branch houses in several cities. His letter is published in full below, and it tells an exceedingly interesting story.

WEST POINT, Ga., Dec. 26, 1925. Southern Shorthand & Business University, Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen: Feeling that you are always interested in learning of the success of your pupils, and knowing how well they are getting along in the business world, I am taking this occasion of writing to tell you that I am with the Cook Clothing Company, at West Point, Georgia, a most progressive and rapidly growing concern, with branch houses in Atlanta, LaGrange, Anderson, South Carolina; Greenville, South Carolina; and Gastonia, North Carolina.

My first position with this firm was that of salesman and collector until I was advanced to my present position as manager of the West Point house, with my salary doubled. I feel much elated over my place with this important firm, and am glad to say that I credit largely my success to the business training which I received in the Southern Shorthand & Business University.

Your bookkeeping course, which is very thorough and complete, has been exceedingly valuable to me, but I wish to emphasize the great benefits derived from your Business Efficiency and Salesmanship Course by the pupils taking it in connection with their bookkeeping or Shorthand Courses. No matter what other company, Chicago mail order house and merchandising concern, will begin about January 10 and is slated to be completed by August 15, 1926.

This announcement was made Tuesday by Clark Wright, of the firm of Nimmons and company, Chicago architects who have been engaged by the company and are now making plans for the big structure, and Joseph H. Beutias, of the B. W. Construction company, of Chicago, which will be in charge of construction.

A conference was held in Atlanta Tuesday between Mr. Wright and Mr. Beutias, Louis B. DeWitt, of Chicago, resident engineer for Nimmons and company; John W. Beutias, also of Chicago, resident representative of the B. W. Construction company, and bankers, material men and city and county officials.

J. W. Griggers, who rises to success after his course at the Southern Shorthand & Business University have the pleasure of hearing from you occasionally, I remain,

Yours truly,

JAMES W. GRIGGERS.

The Southern's large and ever-increasing patronage clearly shows that this old established school is becoming more popular every day.

The business of 1925 has been 30 per cent greater than that of any other year of its sixty years' existence.

There are many advantages to be derived at the Southern by those who wish to prepare for business that are not to be found in any other Business School in the South. Prospective pupils will learn of these advantages by visiting the beautiful home of the of Atlanta's prominent business men and ask them to recommend a good school, by making a cash deposit, until you have investigated. Some schools catch the pupils by this method.

Call, phone or write for catalog.

Enroll between January 4 and 11.

Address A. C. Briscoe, Pres., or L. W. Arnold, Vice Pres., 56 Whitehall street, Atlanta, Ga. Phone WA. 8834.

Rev. B. S. Fleming, traveling representative, will be glad to call anywhere in the country to confer with those who want a Business Education, and Colonel W. H. Preston, city representative, will call on those in the city who are interested. (adv.)

AUTO OWNERSHIP
PROOF REQUIRED TO OBTAIN TAGS

All automobile owners applying for license tags after January 1 must present evidence in proof of their genuine ownership of the car, under provisions of a new law passed at the last session of the legislature, it was pointed out Tuesday by Charlie Cook, cashier of the motor vehicle department in the office of Secretary of State S. Guyt McLendon.

"The new law requires the applicant for a license tag," Mr. Cook said, "to prove ownership of the car by a bill of sale, or other official document, or affidavits and the notary must sign the slip."

The new law also provides that payment for license must be made either by cashier's check, postoffice or express money order or in cash. Many personal, firm and partnership checks are being sent back, causing delay in delivery of tags.

Famous Painting Is Bought by Haverly For Home Gallery

One of the finest examples of the work of a famous southern painter, "The Mother," by Helen Turner, has been purchased by J. J. Haverly and is now in Atlanta to be added to the magnificent collection of paintings which Mr. Haverly has at his residence, "Villa Clare," on Peachtree road. The picture is now hanging in Mr. Haverly's office in the Haverly Furniture company building and will remain there until taken to the private gallery.

"The Mother" was the first picture bought at the recent exhibition by the Grand Central galleries at Nashville, Tenn. The picture, the artist, is a native of Louisville, Ky., but for many years has maintained a studio in New York. She ranks as one of the foremost painters of the day and is especially famous for her portraits of young women.

Mr. Haverly is in Houston, Texas, attending the opening of the new $300,000 art museum there. The picture will hang in his office until his return.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE TO JEWELRY STORE

Considerable damage was done to the furnishings of the Loftis Brothers company jewelry store at 16 South Broad street early Tuesday morning when fire, believed to have started from improper wiring, broke out in the basement. All fire-fighting equipment from the central fire station was called out and Chief W. B. Cody took personal command of the work. The fire was discovered by policemen who saw smoke coming from the basement early Tuesday morning. The extreme cold made fighting the blaze difficult. The flames were confined to the basement. No jewelry was damaged.

Pretty 'Sally' Star Observes Second Birthday Here

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Atlanta is a magnificent city in which to celebrate birthdays, declared Vera Myers, star of Ziegfeld's "Sally," the delightful musical comedy showing at the Atlanta theater all this week. Miss Myers was commenting on this birthday business Tuesday when she mentioned that the anniversary of the important day when she first graced this planet with her person is December 30—which happens to be today.

Exactly one year ago Miss Myers was playing at the Atlanta, in the same show, "Sally." At that time she gave a wonderful party after the show at the Ritz Hotel to members of the "Sally" company and a few fortunate local newspaper men and other friends.

This time plans for a birthday party have not been made. It seems to a casual looker-on as though Atlanta itself ought to do something about it. When a lady with the charm of Vera Myers honors the city by picking it for her birthday twice in succession, it does seem as though Mayor Simps, or city council, or somebody, ought to issue a proclamation at least. Or perhaps call a holiday and stage a real whale of a party in the auditorium.

Just exactly how old Miss Myers is wasn't revealed. She doesn't fear publicity about her age yet, however. At the moment she can't be over 21. But perhaps it's as well that a lady's age is not put down in irrevocable print. For, to nearly all ladies, the time comes when age is not a matter for public display and some 40 or 50 years hence, when Vera Myers is talking to the grandchildren around the Christmas radiator and one of the bright youngsters asks Granny Vera's age and she says that it is not for curious little children to know, it would be embarrassing if the record bright youngster looked up The Constitution files of 1925 and triumphantly informed her that, by this infallible record, she must be so and so number of years.

STATE EMPLOYMENT SITUATION PRAISED

Employment conditions in Atlanta and Georgia are in excellent condition, and major industries are operating full capacity, according to the state employment information bulletin issued Tuesday. Reports from all large cities of the state indicate increased activity in trade.

"Major industries in this state in most cases are operated on satisfactory schedules with full forces employed," the report reads. "State road construction is employing a large volume of unskilled labor, with every indication that this work will continue."

Luscious Oranges Provide the Flavor-

When you quench your thirst in Orange-Crush, you drink a true fruit beverage. Look on the Krinkly Bottle that it comes in. It is stamped Orange-Crush.

Look on the crown. Again that same clear title—Orange-Crush. Orange-Crush does not have to be marked "imitation," because it is a true fruit beverage. All the flavor comes from the orange.

Here is what Orange-Crush is made of: (1) Orange juice—(2) Flavor from the peel to give fragrance and aroma—(3) The refreshing fruit acid which comes from oranges, lemons and limes—(4) U. S. Certified food color (the same as you use in your cakes and candies)—(5) Healthful, sparkling carbonated water—(6) Pure cane sugar. This is Orange-Crush—a wonderfully delicious drink!

Keep Orange-Crush always on ice. Give the children all they like—it's good for them. Serve it at meals—also as a refreshment for your family and guests.

CONVENIENT BOX OF 15 TABLETS FOR 25c

BY CHARLES M. MCCANN.
Copyright, 1925, By United News.

London, December 29.—Hope of continued peace is held out to Europe during 1926.

Politically and economically, the new year promises to be one of reconstruction and new reconstructive endeavor. The year offers opportunity to complete the trinity of post-war ideas—arbitration, security and disarmament.

Guarantees of arbitration and security have been given western Europe by the Locarno treaties which supplement the League of Nations covenant and it is planned during 1926 to extend the Locarno principle to the turbulent Balkans.

A land disarmament conference has been made possible and probable by the changed conditions in the old world. The League of Nations is preparing for the conference, and it may take place next autumn. This conference would be the outstanding political event of 1926, especially if, as is hoped, the United States and Soviet Russia participate.

Germany will resume her place around the European council table when she enters the League of Nations in March. A concerted effort is to be made to bring Russia back into the European circle in 1926. The first open move may come early in January. Preliminary work is being done now.

The New Year starts with the inevitable war, here and there, involving European nations but not taking place in Europe. France and Spain are fighting Abd El Krim in Morocco; France is finding it difficult to suppress rebellion in Syria.

England and Turkey are estranged over the League of Nations' Mosul decision. Egypt is engaged in sporadic North African fighting.

Economically, 1926 offers the best prospect since the post-war deflation. Trade is reviving. Confidence in Europe's future is being restored. Debt-funding, an unmistakable sign of returning normalcy, will be continued through the year. Economists anticipate continuance of the slow, steady progress recorded in 1925.

A summary of the past year in the various principal European countries follows:

Great Britain.
Signature of the Locarno treaties in London, December 1, overshadowed all other events for Great Britain, as it did for other European powers. Secure from war, Britain now can stop worry on that score, and can work toward the revival of her trade.

Strikes and threats of strikes and intense competition, principally from the United States, did not prevent steady, if slow, progress toward trade revival in 1925. Protective tariffs were introduced.

Communist agitation virtually has been ended by the arrest and conviction of a dozen communist leaders.

Ulster and the Irish Free State verged on conflict and then were induced to settle their boundary dispute at the last moment, to the tremendous relief of all Britain.

J. E. Barnard, an amateur microscopist, and Dr. W. E. Gye, together isolated the cancer germ, a discovery which offers tangible hope for a cure of this terrible disease.

The death of the Dowager Queen Alexandra saddened the nation.

A nine-month armistice between miners and operators postponed Britain's principal labor dispute until next May.

France.

Frenchmen will look back on 1925 with mixed feelings. It was a bad year financially. The financial troubles continued. The Locarno treaties guaranteed French security, and the nation can concentrate on its economic problem.

Joseph Caillaux returned to power temporarily during 1925, failed to fund the debt to the United States, and disappeared. Efforts to fund the debt will continue. Inflation is increased; more inflation may be necessary. The franc depreciated.

The political year was aggravated by the situation in Morocco, the other in Syria.

Quick cabinet changes and a succession of crises have confused the political situation.

But France's problem is one of her government imposing on her citizens paying adequate taxes. France is rich. Her people are industrious. Foreign economists have no doubt of France's ability to come back when she really wants to.

Germany.

In 1925 Germany ended the war she was accused of starting in 1924. She started Europe last February with a suggestion for agreement on arbitration and security among western European nations.

On December 1, German statesmen with others representing Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia signed the Locarno treaties. The war was ended, or so it appears.

The occupation of German soil by allied troops has been vastly decreased. French and Belgian troops have been withdrawn from the Rhine. The occupation prescribed by the Versailles treaty is being ameliorated. All Germany may be free soon.

Germany promised at Locarno to join the League of Nations. A special league session in March will approve her application.

The Dawes plan worked smoothly; the mark remained stable; Germany began to make herself felt in trade competition in 1925. There is some winter unemployment.

President Ebert died in February. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg succeeded him, and the old soldier has confounded the prophets by his moderate, w.e. administration.

Soviet Russia.

Russia remains isolated, almost inarticulate. Leon Trotsky returned from political banishment.

Industry was bolstered; great concessions for the exploitation of natural resources were granted to foreign syndicates.

Russia showed signs of coming back. She purchased more than $6,000,000 worth of farm implements, most of them American tractors.

Politically Russia suffered a severe defeat when Germany joined with the rest of western Europe at Locarno. A Russo-Turkish treaty has been signed to offset that. Russia thinks Locarno was aimed at her. Its framers say it was not.

Historically, 1925 may be recorded as the last year of Russia's ostracism.

Italy.
Mussolini triumphed. He controls Italy. He is answerable to the king, not parliament. His government funded the debt to the United States. The rule of fascism is consolidated. There is talk of another Roman empire.

An attempt to assassinate Mussolini thrilled Italy and excited the world. The fire remains relatively low in comparison to the dollar. The trade

GEORGIA COUNSEL SEE CHATTANOOGA

Chattanooga, Tenn., December 29.—

(AP)—Williams & Frierson, local attorneys for the state of Georgia, filed a bill a chancery today against the city of Chattanooga, contesting the right of the city of Chattanooga to condemn land for street purposes already devoted to public uses.

The bill attacks as unconstitutional the two ordinances pending, which provide for the opening of Broad street and Eleventh street through the yards of the Western and Atlantic railroad and seeks to enjoin further action in the condemnation proceedings. The state of Georgia, complainant in the case, claims that it is not a party to the agreement made between the city and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway regarding the opening of the street.

Chattanooga, Tenn., December 29.—

ATTACK THEORIES OF 'REJUVENATION'

Cleveland, Ohio, December 29.—

(AP)—Theories upon which the "rejuvenation" operation is based have been proven false in the opinion of physiologists attending the annual convention of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Persons who have undergone such operations, if subjected to a cross examination, likely would admit that they feel no younger today, and on the whole may be worse off than before, it was claimed.

The conclusions were drawn from researches of Dr. R. N. Oslund, of the University of Illinois, made public today.

Two types of cells, germ and interstitial, are produced by the reproductive glands, it was explained. The germ cells generate life, and previously it was believed that the interstitial cells generated the "hormones" which produce the secondary sexual characteristics—the alert step, bright eye, and masculine vigor of youth.

Dr. Oslund pointed out that under the physical conditions of the operation, it would be impossible to destroy all of the germ cells and therefore it was not possible to prove that the interstitial cells that produced the hormones.

Carrying his experiments farther, he presented evidence to show that it is the germ cells and not the interstitial cells that produce the hormones which, carried in the blood stream, produce the secondary male characteristics.

The cause of pernicious anemia, long a mystery, was believed to have been solved by Dr. C. D. Leake, University of Wisconsin and Dr. J. I. Farrell, Northwestern University.

Lack of acids in the gastric juices of anemic patients had been observed for some time, but it was thought to be an effect of the disease. Dr. Leake and Dr. Farrell are said to have proved that it is a cause.

CHAIRMAN BORAH

IS DINNER GUEST AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, December 29.—

(AP)—Chairman Borah, of the senate, and his wife, were dinner guests at the White House tonight.

His visit gave President Coolidge an opportunity to discuss with him the world court, disarmament, agricultural and other issues such as was afforded last night when Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader, dined with him.

New York, December 29.—

(AP)—"Pat" Crowe, 57-year-old former outlaw, who, in 1900, with "Din" Kelly, kidnaped Eddie Cuddey, 16-year-old son of the Chicago millionaire packer and who received a ransom of $50,000 when the boy was returned unharmed, was given a suspended sentence on a charge of vagrancy when arraigned today in the Essex market court. He was specifically charged with begging in a subway.

Below Zero Point

Waterloo, N. Y., December 29.—

DOWNS WILL SPEAK

HERE ON JANUARY 8

Savannah, Ga., December 29.—

(AP)—I. A. Downs, president of the Central of Georgia railway, has accepted an invitation to speak to the service committee of the Atlanta chamber of commerce at their luncheon on Friday, January 8. He will talk on transportation problems in the state of Georgia, which will be one of a series of addresses delivered by leading figures in various branches of the state's industries.

The balance is vastly unfavorable. Newspapers, trade unions, employers have been submerged in fascism. Mussolini is supreme. There is an angry but so far impotent opposition. The Hilo-Egyptian frontier dispute in Africa was settled peacefully.

The Balkans.

A communist uprising was followed by severe retribution in Bulgaria. An attempt was made to bomb King Boris and his cabinet in Sveti Kral cathedral. There was a reign of white terror. That was last spring. Just now it is proposed to release many political prisoners.

A rebellion threatened Bulgaria last winter but did not develop. Greece and Bulgaria began a war. Troops moved. Bulgarian towns were shelled. The League of Nations said "stop." The war ended. Greece will pay heavy damages to Bulgaria.

Elsewhere the Balkans were comparatively quiet.

Spain.

The war with Abd-El-Krim goes on. Spain had French assistance in 1925 and gained a bit of ground for the first time in many years. The war is costly and unsatisfactory.

General Primo de Rivera, dictator, revamped his directory to include as many civilians as generals. The directory now is called a cabinet. A step toward constitutional government but a short one. De Rivera still rules. King Alfonso sits on the throne.

The year cannot be called a good one for Spain.

Centre Official Quits on Demand Of Student Body

Danville, Ky., December 29.—

(AP)—Professor W. Hickman Carter, business manager of Centre college, has forwarded his resignation to the Centre college board of trustees, it became known here today.

Mr. Carter's resignation was demanded of the board in a petition signed by many Centre students recently. The petition also jointly demanded the resignation of Dr. W. Ames Montgomery, president of Centre college.

Dr. Montgomery had nothing to say in regard to the students' petition for his own resignation, but he said that he was not a party to the petition.

Rumors of students petitioning for resignations of Dr. Montgomery and Mr. Carter were circulated here recently. When later it definitely became known such a petition had been presented before the board of directors, it was intimated that the students had organized up the request because of the alleged unfriendly attitude of the president and business manager toward football.

It was said here tonight that Dr. Montgomery disagreed over football policies with "Uncle" Charlie Moran, nationally-known gridiron mentor, whose Centre eleven gained national honors a few years ago when the Praying Colonels defeated Harvard, and that "Uncle" Charlie resigned before his contract expired. Since the resignation of Dr. Montgomery and Mr. Carter were circulated here recently, it is not known whether the board of trustees will accept Mr. Carter's resignation. In the event it does, however, it is not known whether the board will accept Dr. Montgomery's resignation.

William Shadon, assistant football coach and former Centre gridiron luminary, would be appointed business manager.

Tallahassee, Fla., December 29.—

(AP)—Domestication papers were granted the secretary of state's office for operation of a $5,000,000 cement plant at Hookers Point, near Tampa, according to an announcement by State Senator Hale, counsel.

The plant, Senator Hale stated, will be known as the Florida Portland Cement company, and will have an output of three million barrels of cement a year.

Construction of the plant will begin in January, it was said, with operation expected to start in six months.

John L. Senior, of Chicago, will be president of the company, which was chartered in Delaware.

WALKER TO BEGIN SPEECHES MONDAY

Governor Clifford Walker will open his speaking campaign on behalf of state road and education bonds, and payment of overdue Confederate pensions, at Covington Monday, January 4, it was announced at his office at the state capital on Tuesday.

The governor will speak at the Newton county court house at 11 a. m. it was stated.

Governor Walker, special announcing that he will call a special session of the legislature to convene on February 24, also has announced that he will spend a great portion of his time prior to that date, in "stumping" the state, on behalf of a satisfactory settlement of the Confederate pension problem; for an issue of state bonds for enlargement and betterment of the state educational system, and for an issue of state bonds for completion of a state highway system of permanently paved roads. These are the subjects for settlement which he is to include in his official call.

The governor expects to devote at least three days a week to this speaking campaign, spending the latter part of each week in his office-taking care of routine work, with the first half of each week devoted to speaking all over the state until he has addressed the voters at least once in every judicial district in Georgia.

Funeral Mourners

Found Unconscious
In Home of Death

Waynesburg, Pa., December 29.—A gruesome aftermath to the mysterious deaths of Charles Thompson, 60, wealthy farmer, and Mabel Ward, 27, his housekeeper, was discovered Tuesday. Five mourners who had followed the bodies of Thompson and Miss Ward to their graves were found unconscious.

The mourners, a brother and four nephews of the farmer, returned from the funeral and spent Monday night in Thompson's farmhouse. Tuesday noon, a doctor discovered and revived them.

Authorities hope to determine what caused the apparent asphyxiation or poisoning of the mourners, and possibly to discover in this way how Thompson and his housekeeper met their deaths last Sunday.

Savannah, Ga., December 29.—A resolution setting a standard of fees for real estate transactions, which members of the Savannah bar association are urged to regard, was passed without dissent at a meeting of the bar association today in the superior court room.

The schedule was drafted and presented to the body by a committee of T. M. Cunningham, Jr., A. P. Wright, Jacob Gazan, Edgar J. Oliver and E. Ormonde Hunter.

Postal Inspectors Believe Money Order Forging Ring Broken

Houston, Texas, December 29.—

(AP)—Postoffice inspectors said here today they had stopped what seemed to be an organized forged money order ring with the arrest of a man and his wife in Laredo and the arrest of another man in New York city. Indictments were returned against the man and his wife in Freeport, Ill., and Federal Judge Hutcheson today ordered their removal from this district to Illinois.

Philip M. Kater, alias Philip Van Cortland, Jr., 23, and Mrs. Philip M. Kater, alias Mrs. Philip Van Cortland, who were arrested in Laredo, are still at the county jail in that place. The other man, Bert Mason, alias Robert Blair, 33, is held in jail in New York city.

Kater's arrest, according to postoffice inspectors, came less than a month from the day when he will be one of four heirs to a half million dollar estate to be divided in Portland, Maine. His wife is a 17-year-old girl, well educated, who eloped with him last August. She and her husband both came from well-to-do families. Mason, alias Blair, has a long criminal record behind him, according to the postal inspectors.

According to the evidence in the case 130 postoffice money orders have been stolen from the postoffice in Indianapolis.

ATLANTA... Operating Headquarters of the Southern Group of BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

Atlanta, the general headquarters of the Southern Group of Bell Telephone Companies, is the telephone center of the southeast.

The Group comprises the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, operating in the states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas, and the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company, operating in the states of Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee.

In this extensive territory there are more than 753,000 Bell telephones and approximately 19,000 employees. There is a state organization in each state and the general policies and activities are directed from the Atlanta headquarters.

Atlanta is the largest city in the Southern Bell Company, and has 54,500 telephones.

The telephone growth of Atlanta has been remarkable and is continuing at a rapid rate.

In 1900 there were 2,682 telephones in the metropolitan service area; in 1914 there were 21,532 and this has been more than doubled during the past ten years. It is estimated that there will be an increase of 20,000 stations during the next five years.

The telephone system in Metropolitan Atlanta has grown from one small office to eight central offices, all in company-owned buildings with an investment in service of approximately $11,145,000.

The system in Atlanta is of the most modern type, combining manual service with machine switching. Through this system there flows an average of more than 450,000 local calls and 2,500 long distance calls every day.

There are 2,800 Bell telephone employees located in Atlanta. Of these 1,800 devote their time and efforts to building and maintaining the local plant and rendering the service.

In the general headquarters office there are approximately 1,000 who constitute the general staff and the necessary assistants and their organizations.

The annual payroll of the telephone company, including local and general office workers, amounts to more than $2,731,000.

The location of the telephone company's headquarters has brought to Atlanta the southern offices and warehouses of the Western Electric Company and a division office of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, with almost 1,000 employees.

Facts about ATLANTA

Atlanta has more than 20 leading hotels, with guest rooms numbering 4,400—3,418 of which have private baths. The population of Atlanta is 246,000, of which 68.69% are whites and 31.31% negroes. The population density is 7,742 inhabitants per square mile, and the average wealth per capita is $1,982. This population is the greatest in the history of Atlanta and it is increasing rapidly.

* * * *

There are 584 miles of water mains in Atlanta, and in 1924 an average amount of 26,782,000 gallons of water was pumped daily. The total value of Atlanta's Waterworks system is $7,039,000, and in 1924 the income accruing to the Water Supply System totaled $1,584,785.

Fulton County, of which Atlanta is the capital, has constructed 248.5 miles of paved roads. The amount expended by the County for highway improvements and maintenance during 1924 was $2,317,054.60.

A good place to visit ... A BETTER PLACE TO LIVE!

MONTE CARLO

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

SYNOPSIS.
Sir Hargrave Wendover, country gentleman and financier, calls on a famous London physician for examination, and is told he cannot live for more than six or eight months. Hargrave takes the blow standing, and decides to go on with his plans for the winter as though nothing had happened. However, feeling the urge to give a lift to some poor one in need of help, he experiences on those with whom he comes in contact, until he finds who serves him regularly. He offers her and a member of her family a vacation at Monte Carlo. She has dinner with her fiancé, Robert, and persuades him to act as her host. They call on Sir Hargrave, and tell him they will go. In Monte Carlo they place a car at their disposal. Violet tells Sir Hargrave that she overheard a man and woman discussing him at the Sporting club in a way that made her think they were his enemies.

INSTALLMENT XV.
AN APPEAL.

Hargrave realized with unflinching conviction that this passionate quest of his for sensation, to feel absolutely and completely before the end, was finished in the strangest and most unlikely of places. Her words had been commonplace enough, but underneath them was that curious tremor of truth. Her glance might have been meant to be merely pleasantly and girlishly provocative, yet to him it carried another message. Here was madness, ready for the making! His protegee, a child, trusting in his word, removed from him by her youth, by the hard fought struggle of her life, by every sense of decency. Yet she had succeeded whilst the others round him failed hour after hour. He looked after her as a man may look at the ghost of his vain desires.

There was after all some slight delay before Hargrave was able to summon Mademoiselle Diane from the game which enthralled her. Caught up in a little block of people at the entrance to the chemin de fer room, he was suddenly accosted by the woman who had excited Violet's curiosity.

"It is Sir Hargrave Wendover, is it not?" she asked, with a smile. "Might I recall myself to your memory? I am the Marchesa di Bieni."

"Nina von Tolger when I had the pleasure of meeting you in New York, he ventured with a bow.

"That is really nice of you to remember," she declared. "We met on the polo ground at Long Island. I was going to ask you, Sir Hargrave, if you would spare me a moment of your time. It makes it easier that you remember. There are two chairs in the corner there."

She took his acquiescence as a matter of course, and led the way. Hargrave seated himself in silence. He was searching his mind all the time for some story which he had once heard of her, but before he could recall it her opening took him by surprise.

"I am a woman of cosmopolitan tastes," she began, "and since I lost my husband in the war I have extended them perhaps even too widely. I have cosmopolitan friends. Amongst them: number a Mr. Andrea Trentino."

So Violet's story of the cable and her premonition had been no myth! Hargrave was startled, but he recovered himself almost at once. "Indeed," he murmured. "Then you possess one friend upon whom I cannot congratulate you."

"What have you against him?" she asked, toying with her fan. Hargrave's gently raised eyebrows indicated his astonishment. "Marchesa," he said, "it is somewhat early in our acquaintance for confidences."

"Why should we not talk frankly?" she persisted. "You are a man, Sir Hargrave, whom I have long wanted to know. I am a woman who has the name of being difficult. I am not difficult with those who are my friends, with those whom I like."

"It has been Andrea Trentino's good fortune," he asked, "to discover that?"

"She looked at him reproachfully. She had beautiful eyes, and she knew well how to use them.

"That is not kind," she protested. "Andrea Trentino is a friend without a doubt, and since my husband's death—he was killed in the war, as I daresay you know—I have needed friends."

The people surged round them. Hargrave was continually forced to exchange remarks with passing acquaintances, most of whom were known also to the marchesa. She became impatient.

"May I come to see you at your beautiful villa, tomorrow?" she begged. "Or will you permit me to invite you to mine?"

"For the moment, I regret that neither is possible," Hargrave replied. Her eyebrows were drawn together and her lips compressed. The man had been reputed difficult; he was more difficult than she had expected.

"Is it that you are no longer a man of gallantry, Sir Hargrave?" she asked. "Or do I come too late upon the scene?"

"Is it a matter of that sort, marchesa, which you wish to discuss with me?"

Her whole face relaxed. Good humor was best. She laughed softly. "You are too clever for me," she admitted. "Here then is my second method. I will say in plain words what I wish to lead up to. I wish to plead for your grace on behalf of Andrea Trentino, and an explanation as to what your intentions are."

"I am sorry," Hargrave rejoined. "It is a habit of my life never to talk business with a lady."

"Pleasure might creep into our conversation," she ventured. He shook his head.

"My dealings with Mr. Trentino, or which concern Trentino, are conducted between my stockbroker and his representatives in New York and Buenos Ayres. If it is your business, marchesa, to ask me to sell Andrea Trentino some of his own shares back again, let me tell you at once that nothing but failure awaits you."

"Do not be so hasty," she begged. "As yet I have asked nothing. Why do you wish to ruin this man? You will not profit by it. You will lose, they tell me, a great deal of money if you persist."

"I have discovered my probable loss," was the equable reply. "If it were twice as great, I should act precisely as I am acting."

She was silent for a moment. Again stray units of the people who passed claimed their attention.

"It is hard to talk to you here," she complained. "I wish to plead, to appeal to your kindness, your generosity, your chivalry, but it is so difficult when people interpose all the time with their banalities. My car is outside. Come back to my villa for one-half hour whilst I explain with no one to hear."

He looked at her curiously. There was not a line upon her face, not a trace of insincerity in the eager invitation of her eyes. It was a touch, he thought, of all that was artificial in the world which surged round them—the woman willing to give so much to save the man.

"That would not be possible, marchesa," he said. "Tonight I give a supper party for which I ought already to be collecting my guests."

"She steeled herself to her first failure, to accept the inevitable without admitting it as failure to him or to herself."

"Then I can only plead with you under these very difficult conditions," she continued, "and if any one sees us and sees these tears which are so near my eyes, they will probably think that I am asking you for one of those jewels such as Diane is wearing, or for a handful of milles to gamble with. What do I care? Andrea Trentino may not be of your world, he may be your enemy, but he has been my friend for three years. The war left me penniless. My husband could do nothing for me. His family, although they are one of the noblest in Italy, live on the paltriest of pensions. Andrea met me here when I was in despair. He was kind to me; he gave me the little villa in which I live. He comes every year, and although things between us are not what they were, his friendship is a stern necessity to me."

"Necessity?" Hargrave murmured. "Your own people are wealthy." "My father went down in the Wall Street boom seven years ago," she answered. "It broke his heart and he died. He left nothing. In my way," she went on, "I am proud. After my husband's death, or at any time, I would have married any one who had asked me, but in Europe and these parts today one does not marry. The one thing which I could not endure," she continued, "would be to ask the help of casual friends, the lover of a week or a month, to face the world again, to have all the despair and the anxiety of those unmentionable others. That is why I have clung to Andrea Trentino. Now do you understand?"

"I am beginning to," Hargrave admitted. "I have had a long cable from him," she went on. "I am to make your acquaintance anyhow, I am to use any argument I can think of, to find out what you want, to persuade you to show him this grace which he asks of you. That is why I have sought you out."

Lovely Dance at Druid Hills Club Honors Misses Hodgson

Prominent among the interesting and elaborate social affairs of the week was the beautiful dance at which Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Grady Hodgson were hosts Tuesday evening at the Druid Hills Golf club, honoring their attractive daughters, Misses Martha and Jennie Hodgson, who are popular members of the younger set of society.

The ballroom of the club presented a gay scene with its brilliant Christmas decorations. The doorways, fireplace and windows were banked with palms, ferns and Christmas evergreens and the wall and ceiling lights were veiled with small red silk shades.

Dr. and Mrs. Hodgson and the Misses Hodgson received the guests at one end of the ballroom, standing before a mass of tropical palms which banked the fireplace.

DEAN OF VASSAR IS VISITING OLD HOME IN ATLANTA

Pretty Sub-Debs Enjoy Feast And Chatter About Presents And Their Special Beaux

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.

To Atlanta is given the extreme honor of supplying one of the world's highest dignitaries in all intellectual fields—the present, very capable dean of Vassar!

Whenever old Vassar, so replete as it is in its accumulation of the learning of all ages, is mentioned, the first remark one always hears is: "You know Miss Thompson, dean of Vassar, is AN ATLANTA GIRL!"

Certainly most justifiable pride, but did you ever stop to think how Vassar is honored?

This delightfully representative southern woman—than whom none on earth knows better how to bring to young life the softer undergrowth of character—is in the responsible place of Vassar's dean! Vassar is, indeed, honored and no doubt knows it full well. Her feeling is one of proprietorship, Atlanta's being a closer bond—that of kinship!

One there is still, which takes precedence over both of these—the one who calls her from, no matter what corner of the globe in which she finds herself at the Christmas season—the little mother who out-ranks everything else in her full life!

Once a year she pays homage at this little shrine, pouring out the libations of a devotion which has always been largely the source of such inspiration as was requisite for the brilliant achievements as has been this brilliant "Atlanta girl's."

After finishing in our own schools, Mildred Thompson was graduated from Vassar. After graduation she was tendered the chair of history, which post she filled with such honor and distinction that soon she was accounted the most outstanding and representative figure in the entire personnel of Vassar's faculty.

Soon the honor of election to her deanship followed, and just how well she has borne these high honors is well known.

Beautiful pleasures follow in the wake of such exaltation! Wealth, position, intellect—all—seek an audience with Vassar's dean!

Entree to the most wonderful houses and the most exclusive circles are hers. Pleasures from every angle are cast at her feet. Many interesting tours to the world's spots of interest annually she has.

But once a year the pilgrimage to that, the dearest spot on earth, is not interfered with by either kings or potentates. To make bright and warm by her presence the Christmas of the dear little Atlanta mother, who has so helped in making her life beautiful, she comes to Georgia for Christmas always.

Fresh inspiration, a renewed impetus does Vassar's dean gather from this dear source—the arms of her mother, nestled in the little Atlanta girl the finer, warmer qualities of character which were to mean so much later to hundreds of other little American girls seeking the "big road" through life. To know Miss Thompson is an education in itself!

Beautiful Christmas Luncheon.

Did you ever have the pleasure of seeing fifty lovely 16-year-old girls all in brand-new Christmas finery sit down together at one long, broad banquet board?

A more entrancing sight would be difficult to imagine!

This is exactly what happened Monday when Kitty Parks entertained fifty of Atlanta's most charming sub-debs at a beautiful luncheon at the Biltmore.

A private dining room was used, and one broad, beautiful table was stretched to hold the entire party. Its lovely expanse was covered in a snowy damask cloth over which were placed flat decorations of poinsettia and artistic arrangements of dark green foliage. The center piece was a huge basket of the same bright Christmas flowers. Every appointment was dainty and exquisite to the minutest detail. A delightful luncheon was served to the hum of all the latest Christmas gossip in this peppy, little charming circle.

Such excitement was experienced over who gave who for Christmas! "Did you know that Jack gave Boye Loke that lovely beaded bag? Isn't it a dream? I shall religiously cultivate Jack around next Christmas if that is the kind of a boy he is!"

"Have you seen Mary Mosely's double allottment of gorgeous bracelets? Is it not a shame that she had to get two when I wanted one so badly? The luck of some girls!"

"What do you think of those wonderful rhinestone buckles Kitty Parks got? Wouldn't they be enough to make any girl fall for the boy who could do a thing like that?"

Three hours of such chatter! Wouldn't you have liked to hear all the "how downs" that were exchanged? What do you suppose happened to the boys of their acquaintance? Poor little innocent things! They never talk about the girl of their acquaintance when placed under circumstances at stag dinners, smokers and so on! No!

What good times these girls have!

Miss Anne Spalding Honors Miss Knowlton At Buffet Supper

One of the loveliest events featuring the social calendar of Tuesday evening was the buffet supper at which Miss Anne Spalding was hostess at her home on Spring street, complimenting Miss Catherine Knowlton, of Columbia, S. The honor guests for the occasion will be Mrs. Dana C. Lyle, state president, and Mrs. R. L. Turman, Atlanta president. All ward chairmen, both old and new, will be in the receiving line. Refreshments will be served from 12 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., but from 11 to 12 a. m. there will be a demonstration, now considered the most modern system of voting and counting known. The object being to give all parties a representation. Cleveland, Ohio, has incorporated it in their new charter, and is only one of many cities and towns using it. As the league stands for voting, all members are expected to take part in their own league elections.

Those desiring to become members are cordially invited to headquarters to join, especially on open-house day, so they may have an opportunity to meet and know other league members.

Those who wish to vote who find it impossible to get to headquarters next Wednesday are reminded they can clip the ballot from the December issue of The Pilgrim and mail it in, but in the rush and excitement of holiday pleasures it should be remembered their vote will not count if received later than 4 p. m., January 6, at headquarters.

There will be an organization committee meeting at headquarters Tuesday, December 29, at 10:30 a. m., to discuss important matters. All members are urged to be present and on time. This will be followed by a board meeting at 11 a. m. to close up the year's business.

Headquarters were closed December 28, 29 and 27 for the holidays, and will also be closed next Friday for New Year's.

Because of league elections on Wednesday, January 6, the monthly board meeting has been postponed from Tuesday, January 5, to Friday, January 8, at 10:30 a. m., at headquarters. The newly elected directors will be expected to attend this meeting.

Of interest to all league members comes the news this week from Mrs. Dan C. Lyle, state president, that she has heard from the Savannah league.

The final date for the next state convention has been settled. The time will be October 28, 29 and 30, 1926. The place, Savannah, Ga.

Beginning January 2 members are urged to phone all news of league activities to Mrs. Guy L. Sink, executive secretary, as all publicity for the league will in the future be handled through headquarters.

SLAMS AND SALAMS

By Louise Dooly

A GROUP of people were discussing the prospect that Italy may soon be proclaimed an empire, and comment about the rare and interesting figure of the "empire maker," brought out the fact that one woman in the party had dined with Mussolini in Rome last winter.

"You can imagine how thrilled I was," she said, "when I found I was to be placed next to him, and as the dinner progressed, he made the thrill continue."

"Is he as magnificent on such an occasion as in public life and before the camera?" somebody asked.

"Most impressive," she answered. "You never forget that he was a personality even when he indulged in a good deal of fooling. And pranks, evidently are the joy of his life when he is not dictating."

"We got along famously, the great Mussolini and I. So much so that I was not surprised, but quite flattered, when he said that he wanted me to write for him my name in full so that he should have it accurately and remember it. He drew a pencil and paper from his pocket, and when I would have carried out his request, the pencil lead proved not to be lead but rubber, and bent to one side. Then how he laughed at my confusion."

"Later he apologized most confidently, asked me to prove my forgiveness by accepting another pencil, and writing the name, which he really wanted. I agreed, and the lead in the second pencil, as soon as I put it to paper, . . . up into the wood . . ."

"Now you can imagine what his power with his own people is and how he can juggle all Italy, when I tell you that he played even a third trick, and yet I could never grow really angry with him."

A LOGICAL CONCLUSION. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW predicts a millennium in which some of the ideal conditions will be a four-hour day, and more flexible marriage.

With the married men having all those other hours to idle around the house, marriage will have to be more flexible.

A FAMOUS BLIND LADY. The central decoration back of the bench of the world court is a woman—Justice, of course, thus personified.

Maybe that is the reason some of the bitter-enders think the bench would not be comfortable for Americans. The American male would still rather bestow mercy on woman—mercy rather than justice. Mercy in the form of favors, rather than justice for which she wouldn't have to be grateful to him.

AD-M'S MEMORIAL. SOME man complained, when it was announced that a member of his sex had raised a monument to Eve, that he didn't see why. "I've never heard of a monument to Adam," and his tone was aggrieved.

"A monument to Adam is raised at least once in every twenty-four hours," a disrespectful female answered, "when some man somewhere repeats, 'It was the woman tempted me.'"

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE? WE HAD occasion not long ago to record our chagrin as a pedestrian when we asked why there were no sidewalks in a certain very busy new subdivision, and were told, "Because nobody walks."

cars are of course the same people who, when they go on a journey, still have to ride on railroad trains.

Now we have had it handed to us that the railroads are not at all interested in "improving their passenger depot, because they anticipate the time not far distant when they will have nothing to carry but freight."

And then we felt like that—just freight.

WHAT'S THE USE?

OUR invitation to the recent night school exercises was written by one of the adult pupils who a year ago could not read a word or write even his own name.

We answered it on the typewriter, because if those adults who have worked so hard to learn to write should see the best sample we can provide of our handwriting, when we're working on it at almost since we were born, they'd throw up the sponge.

"What," they would lament, "is the use of being literate?"

We long since decided, anyway, that education can be retrogressive.

A LONG WAY TO GO. THE first response to the fuss we made the other day about the difficulty of finding Christmas cards which are appropriate to the religious meaning of the feast was a very beautiful picture of the Nativity, the copy of a famous painting, with a verse appended from a Christmas carol.

The sender admitted that she had sent to England for her supply.

STRIKING A BALANCE. ONE of the funniest things in ashon books these days is the extremely sophisticated costume model, with the baby blue stare above it of innocent to the point of being morose.

YOUTH "EXPRESSES" ITSELF. AND while we are touching on delicately delicate subjects, the much-neglected subject of the younger generation, was it not a bit significant of something or other when two separate stories were carried on the front page of the same issue of most papers one day during the week which related the refusal by the postal authorities to carry the December number of college journals in two different institutions, because both publications contained matter which the federal authorities declared obscene?

The younger generation in these cases haven't even the satisfaction of decrying the old fogies of the older generation, because at least in one case it was the student body itself which anticipated any action on the part of the faculty by meeting at once and firing the editor-in-chief and the managing editor.

SOMEBODY HAS TO BE. THE legislative group of the Princeton student government has ordered the Princeton Glee club on concert tour to wear garters.

Well, make youth, anyway, is showing some determination to be discreet.

Atlantans Are Guests At Orton Plantation.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sprunt are entertaining house party at their home, Orton plantation, one of the most famous and interesting places in North Carolina, which is located on the Cape Fear river. They will entertain at a series of informal parties for their guests, among them being a New Year's party to which guests will motor out from Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Carter, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Corning, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ellis, of Atlanta, are among the guests at this wonderful plantation which is over 50 years old, and comprises over 30,000 acres of land. It was formerly owned by the late Kenneth Murchison, father of Mrs. Ellis, and Mr. Carter, and Kenneth Murchison, noted architect, of New York, and at his death was bought by the late Mrs. James Sprunt, his daughter, from her sisters and brothers, and at his death was inherited by her son, Lawrence Sprunt, the host of the New Year's house party of 1925.

The brick used in the house and grounds was brought from England, as was the silver service used in the old Episcopal church on the grounds. There is a lake 10 miles long which provides boating and swimming in summer, and duck shooting and ice skating for winter time diversions. Mrs. Ellis spent a great part of her young ladyhood at Orton plantation.

Many distinguished guests have been entertained within its portals, and brilliant affairs have featured the social life of the owners and visitors at the plantation.

Many interesting magazine articles have been published about the beauty and picturesqueness of Orton plantation and it is one of the show places of the south.

You have made it possible for us to carry into lives and homes of many sick, wounded, cripple, blind ex-service men not only comfort, sunshine and happiness but many real worthwhile blessings they otherwise could never have obtained. Your names are written upon our hearts and may our Heavenly Father shower upon you through the coming New Year His richest blessings.

In thinking of the members of Service Star Legion my heart leaps with joy and gratitude for what they have been to me. So helpful, so inspiring, always patient and loyal. May each one of these reap during 1926 health, peace and happiness.

May every one of us keep through the New Year a Christmas spirit, and a determination to carry joy to more afflicted ones than ever before. And with a renewed hope, continue to work and pray for a lasting peace on earth.

MISS SAM D. JONES.

Miss Estelle Fort Weds Mr. Freeman in Chattanooga

C. M. Fort announces the marriage of his daughter, Estelle, formerly of Atlanta, now of Chattanooga, to John Telford Freeman, which occurred on Tuesday evening, December 29, at 7 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church in Chattanooga, Tenn.

The wedding, which was a quiet one, is of particular interest to numbers of people in Atlanta, where the bride enjoyed wide popularity.

Mrs. Freeman, who is a young woman of unusual beauty, charm and intellect, has a host of friends in Atlanta where she made her home until two or three years ago, when she went to Chattanooga to live. She is the youngest daughter of C. M. Fort, who has lived in Atlanta all his life and is prominently connected in the insurance business, and the late Mary Chapman Wood. She is the sister of Mrs. F. J. Whiteside, Carl Fort, Miss Mamie and Miss Katie Fort and Mrs. T. B. Norris.

Mr. Freeman, who originally made his home in Atlanta, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Freeman, of Atlanta. He has made his home in Chattanooga for the past few years, and is connected with the Freeman-Reed company in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman left for a wedding trip and after January 4 will be at home in the Renner apartments, Chattanooga, Tenn.
